— Our mission

This community exists because the industry wasn't built for us. We're changing it from within.

The number of women leading, building, and investing in financial services has grown — but the structural barriers, lack of visibility, missing connections, and the rooms where women still aren't included haven't disappeared on their own.

NYC Fintech Women exists because women in this industry deserve a community built specifically for them — not an afterthought or a diversity initiative. It's a substantive network where careers get accelerated and ambitions get taken seriously.

If you're ready to build your real career in a real community with likeminded women, this is where you start.
